THEME - Integrating Home Economics Knowledge and Skills towards the New Wave of Industrial Revolution

The COVID 19 pandemic has affected people globally regardless of nationality, gender, education level, and income. As we move towards the endemic era of the post COVID 19 and continue our journey in the new wave of Industrial Revolution, we should be ready to face more changes and challenges in various aspects of our life. We need to align our roles as Home Economists to enable us to compete and contribute locally and globally in this 21st Century. Home Economists can play a significant role to sustain development, reorientation and adapt changes toward the management of individuals, families, and communities. We need to build bridges and create partnership among Home Economists to tackle the changes in the new Industrial Revolution so as to build technology literacy, capability in globalization, expertise in future strategies and life skills to shape future generations in near future
